Dear Mark

Covering Teachers' Absence

Thank you for your letter dated 22 February 2024 in relation to evidence about teacher absence. We agree that this is an important area of work which has implications for the recruitment and retention of staff in schools across Wales.

During inspection and monitoring activity we discuss teacher absence and its impact on pupils, but we don't collect information about the use of supply teachers. Feedback from discussions with headteachers suggests that finding appropriately qualified staff, particularly at short notice, is very challenging. To support us with our response to your query we have also spoken to current headteachers who are on secondment with Estyn.

Supply teachers

During our work we tend not to observe staff on short-term contracts although we will observe supply teachers who are more established in a school on a long-term contract. We often hear senior leaders talk about the challenges faced in securing good quality supply staff, especially to cover subject specialist and Welsh medium teaching in the secondary sector. During our meetings with pupils they will often reference where they have supply teachers and the impact this has on their continuity of learning.

Supply teacher availability

In some parts of Wales, schools rarely have a problem with booking supply teachers and agencies ring daily to check if they need someone. In other areas, there are challenges in finding supply staff, especially at short notice and in shortage subjects/Welsh medium contexts. If absences are known about in advance, it is usually sufficient to book a week ahead, although occasionally supply staff will cancel arrangements on the day. The lack of available supply staff at short notice means that schools feel the agencies have the 'upper hand' and do not always provide someone with the right expertise or skills. As a result, many schools tend to cover unforeseen absences internally whenever possible. This is a cheaper option but can put pressure on senior staff. Some schools have appointed full-time or part-time teachers or unqualified teachers (cover supervisors) who only teach cover lessons and support other teachers or run interventions with pupils when not required to cover lessons.

Recruitment and retention incentives for supply teachers

Schools generally don't provide any recruitment or retention incentives for supply staff.

The previous and new agency framework

Often senior leaders are unaware that the framework has changed or don't feel it is any different from before.

Agency fees

There is a big difference in cost between qualified teachers and cover supervisors sourced from agencies. Some schools tend to opt for cover supervisors because they are much cheaper and for short term supply, their perception is that the pupil experience is not hugely different. Costs for qualified supply teachers have risen but are generally in line with increases in teacher salaries. If the quality of the supply teacher is poor, the cost inevitably seems too high. In a few local authorities, schools use an insurance scheme to pay for supply staff but this doesn't cover the full cost.

The suitability and quality of agency staff

There is considerable variation in the quality of agency staff and their expectations when deployed. As noted previously, in some areas of Wales, quality isn't a significant problem, although headteachers report that only a few agency staff come into school expecting to teach. In other areas, senior leaders feel that supply staff are often of poor quality and unreliable.

The new booking platform and its impact

Senior leaders are often unaware of new booking platform or have not made much use of it because of the lack of availability of supply teachers in some areas.

The professional development of supply staff

In general, senior leaders are not aware that agency staff receive any professional learning and feel that it's not evident in the quality of their work. If there is a long-term supply (four weeks or more), schools may provide aspects of professional learning e.g. completing part of the induction process with an NQT or inviting supply staff to attend professional learning sessions with school staff. Senior leaders feel that supply agencies provide very little support for supply teachers, including NQTs, and so they feel a responsibility to do this themselves.

Dear Chair

Economic Resilience Fund – Post Completion Monitoring

Following the Committee's scrutiny of the Welsh Government's 2020-21 accounts, I am writing to update the Committee on the progress of the post completion monitoring (PCM) of grants issued under the Covid-19 Economic Resilience Fund (ERF).

The Committee will recall the Welsh Government directly provided more than 26k grants worth £352m through ERF to protect business and their employees throughout the pandemic, as a part of the wider £2.6bn of Covid-19 business support delivered. The ERF schemes were delivered on a rolling basis over eight rounds during financial years 2020/21 and 2021/22. Given the nature of the circumstances in which these grants were paid was iterative, our aim was to improve the control framework around the grant award process, learning from previous application rounds, as well as post-award checks, either through surveys or full post completion monitoring. Annexed to this letter is the position at the end of January 2024 in relation to ERF PCM.

With best wishes.

Yours sincerely

Andrew Slade

ERF Write-off

To date there are 90 live awards (some will be to the same business) to the value of £3,348,718 where the business has entered some form of insolvency. As part of WG standard debt management procedures, the Central Debt team submit a proof of debt form to the Administrator/Liquidator to lodge the debt. Dear Mark

I am writing to clarify arrangements for publication of independent reviews commissioned by the Welsh Government as part of the special measures intervention at Betsi Cadwaladr University Health Board.

I understand that during his evidence to the Public Accounts and Public Administration Committee on 7 March, the chair of the health board commented that it was for Welsh Government to decide where and when the independent reviews were to be published. This is not the approach agreed with the health board.

The agreed process for handling reports from each of the Welsh Government commissioned reviews is as follows:

- Director General HSS/CEO NHS Wales to write to health board chief executive to formally share final report, setting expectations for next steps to be taken by the health board.
- Health board to schedule the final report to be presented by the reviewer(s) for discussion at the next development session of the relevant Board Committee.
- Health board to develop draft management response for agreement by the relevant Board committee at its next public meeting.
- Health board to schedule consideration of final report and management response at Board meeting. Board papers, including copy of final report and management response, to be published on the health board's website in advance of the Board meeting.

As part of the special measures intervention, the Welsh Government has commissioned 10 independent reviews relating to a number of key areas including patient safety; vascular services; mental health; workforce; planning; and communication and engagement. All 10 of these reviews have been completed and the final reports have been formally shared with the health board. The health board has published the final reports and its management response for four of these reviews, as part of published papers for its Board meeting in November 2023.

Annex 1:

An update on the planned improvements to the delegation framework for decisions relating to the employment of senior civil servants.

The Welsh Government have strengthened the governance and documented processes relating to Senior Civil Service (SCS) workforce decisions. This note provides a summary of the arrangements in place at April 2024.

The Welsh Government's approach to SCS workforce matters is determined by the framework Cabinet Office oversees for all UK Government departments and devolved administrations. SCS terms and conditions, including the pay remit, are not delegated and Cabinet Office lead on Permanent Secretary recruitment, many aspects associated with Director General recruitment and support for Director-level talent management.

The framework to support Permanent Secretary employment matters is fully operational and includes the provision for an annual report to the Welsh Government PRemCom on the application of that framework, with the first report submitted in summer 2023. The report for the 2023/24 financial year is due to be tabled for the committee shortly and will then be provided to Cabinet Office.

However, as a devolved administration there are some flexibilities and decisions that form part of the Welsh Government's organisation-level governance, in order to meet business and operational need. It is important that when we take decisions about our workforce, those decisions are transparent and supported by strong governance. The Welsh Government's Workforce Delegations & Accountability Framework sets out the responsibilities and accountabilities for the creation, evaluation and recruitment for SCS posts and any changes to individual SCS members working patterns.

The People and Remuneration Committee (PRemCom) retains assurance, informing decision making for some limited SCS related issues including statutory responsibilities around SCS terms and conditions of service, remuneration matters and exceptions to policy. The Chairs of ARAC and Remuneration Committee were actively engaged in the planning and implementation of improvements to governance and decision making relating to the employment of the SCS. Members of the Committee were also involved in the reshaping of RemCom as the People and Remuneration Committee, informing the terms of reference.

Directors General to take decisions on SCS recruitment and resourcing, empowering them to effectively manage their whole workforce and develop the right structures at the right time to deliver ministerial priorities. This includes changes to working patterns or working hours that can be accommodated within delegated workforce budgets.

A strengthened process on partial retirement has been introduced to support SCS colleagues in considering their working arrangements whilst also ensuring business

Annex 2:

An update on the role of Local Partnerships in relation to consultancy appointments, or any other activities, undertaken through this organisation. Can you also confirm whether the resources sourced from Local Partnerships is included as part of the Welsh Government's headcount figures in the Accounts?

Background

Local Partnerships (LP) is a public sector consultancy, jointly owned by the Local Government Association (50%), HM Treasury (45%) and the Welsh Government (5%), as members in a limited liability partnership.

Working solely for public sector organisations, LP serves as a key interface between local and central government and provides expert advice and practical resources alongside project and programme delivery support, enabling public services to thrive and delivering value and efficacy for the public purse.

Local Partnerships has a team of specialist staff with combination of public and private sector experience to deliver quality support to the public sector, from supporting and accelerating the delivery of major infrastructure, tackling climate challenges through waste efficiency and renewable energy propositions, through to wider place-making initiatives.

Ownership

LP was originally a 50:50 joint venture between Local Government Association (LGA) and HM Treasury (HMT). Welsh Government took 5% capital at nil cost in January 2018, which offers no entitlement for distributions nor exposure to calls for additional funding. Under the terms of LP members' agreement, Welsh Government appoints a board member to the LP board from the senior civil service.

Through LGA's ownership, the Welsh Local Government Association and Welsh Local Authorities that are members of LGA benefit from ownership of LP.

Through HMT's ownership, UK Government Departments benefit from ownership of LP.

Procurement

Local Partnerships benefits from an exemption from public procurement known as the Teckal exemption. This allows public sector organisations that participate in the joint control of LP to award contracts to LP without competition, provided certain requirements are met.

- service requirements and deliverables
- services commencement date
- charges payable and their profiling
- services completion date
- key personnel
- locations from which service is provided
- contract monitoring procedures

The services of Local Partnerships staff are supplied on a consultancy basis under the terms of the framework agreement and work order. There are no secondments into Welsh Government.

As Local Partnerships staff provide services as consultants, in line with the disclosure requirements of the FReM, they are not included in the Welsh Government staff numbers figures reported within the Remuneration Report in the Accounts.

Annex 3:

A breakdown of the ordinary staffing headcount would be provided including a breakdown of those on secondment or contractual arrangements into the organisation.

As at 31 March 2024, the headcount of Welsh Government was:

	31.3.24
Permanent	5,757
Secondment (In)	105
Loan (In)	56
Apprentice / Placement	49
Fixed term	169
	6,136

It is important to note, this will not align to the Staff Numbers when published in the Annual Accounts Remuneration Report for 2023-24. The Staff Numbers for the Remuneration Report are required to be prepared to present the average number of people employed in the year, and therefore are an average of Full Time Equivalent staff over the financial year, it is not the 'headcount' which is the number of individuals at a point in time, irrespective of whether they are full or part-time employees.

Annex 4:

The number of KPIs the Welsh Government has as an organisation and how, or if, they are weighted as priorities.

The number of indicators reported on within the WG Performance Framework has varied on an annual basis and has been adapted from year-to-year, taking into account data availability and changes to the strategic goals of the performance areas.

In 2022-23, 54 indicators were reported on across the Framework. This was a similar number to previous years (55 in 2021-22 and 53 in 2020-21), although the exact indicators reported on have varied over this time. We plan to move to a quarterly balanced scorecard approach to KPI reporting in the 2024-25 financial year, and we anticipate that this will lead to a substantial reduction in the number of indicators reported on.

ExCo and the Board consider the indicators for each theme both individually and collectively, in order to make a comprehensive and rounded assessment of performance. The indicators are not currently weighted by priority, and all are considered to add to our understanding of Welsh Government's overall performance. As part of the development of the new balanced scorecard approach, we will consider whether any weighting of indicators is appropriate.

A subset of indicators is included in the annual accounts, since space does not allow for the full set of indicators to be included. There were a number of considerations in choosing these indicators for inclusion in the accounts. This included ease of interpretation by an external audience, their ability to provide an indication of organisational performance, and their suitability for external publication. These published indicators are treated equally with unpublished indicators by ExCo and the Board when scrutinising Welsh Government's performance.

Annex 6:

In relation to the Committee's Public Appointments inquiry, it was agreed that the following information would be provided:

- A full breakdown of the collated figures for Welsh-speakers appointed to public appointments since the institution of the relevant Public Appointments code. You also agreed to provide information on the first line of each successful applicants post code.
- A full list of both the regulated and unregulated bodies subject to the public appointment code.
- A full list of the bodies that are not subject to the code and an explanation about why this is the case.
- An understanding about why these arrangements are codified in an Order of Council and your understanding as to whether there is legal competence for it to be done in this way.
- Whether Senedd public appointments are dealt with in line with the public appointments code – is there a memorandum of understanding between the two organisations.

Location and Welsh Language Skills of Appointees to Public Appointments

The Governance Code on Public Appointments was published in 2016. The Appoint recruitment system did not capture data on Welsh language and location until 1 April 2019 and so no data is available prior to that date. The Appoint data provided after 1 April 2019 was not mandated by the system and so the analysis below is limited to the data which was voluntarily provided at that time.

Cais captures information more consistently than which was collected by Appoint as some fields are now mandatory. Data on Welsh speaking skills was not collected at all on Appoint. It is mandatory on Cais to provide data on understanding the Welsh language, Welsh speaking skills and on location.

Public Appointments by Location:

The table below shows the number and proportion of appointees by postcode area. This data was collated from both the Cais and Appoint recruitment systems. Where less than 10 appointees were based within a postcode area, they were combined with other postcodes within the same region, in order to protect anonymity.

Data included in the analysis below:

- Appoint from 1 April 2019 – 31 May 2023
- Cais (the replacement for Appoint) from 1 June 2023 - 27 March 2024
- This does not represent all appointments as there is only limited information before May 2023

Public Appointments by Welsh Language Skills:

Understanding of Welsh

The table below shows the number and proportion of appointees by skill level in understanding Welsh. This data was collated from both the Cais and Appoint recruitment systems. Since some specific skill levels have small counts of staff, data has been combined into three categories: those with no skills, those with basic or intermediate skills and those with advanced skills. The specific skill levels within each category are listed below the table.

^This category includes appointees who can understand most or all work-related conversations.

Welsh Speaking Skills

The table below shows the number and proportion of appointees by skill level in speaking Welsh. This data is only available on the Cais recruitment system, and therefore can only be reported for around half of appointees. Since some specific skill levels have small counts of staff, data has been combined into three categories: those

An explanation about why some Welsh public bodies are not subject to the Governance Code:

Unregulated public bodies (i.e. those which are not included in Orders in Council) are not subject to the Governance Code on Public Appointments. I have listed those which voluntarily follow all or part of the Code when making public appointments. Other unregulated public bodies may decide not to follow all or part of the Code. I have provided a list of these.

An understanding about why these arrangements are codified in an Order of Council and your understanding as to whether there is legal competence for it to be done in this way:

Orders in Council make provision for the Commissioner for Public Appointments to monitor Department's procedures when making public appointments. Orders include a list of all the bodies that are regulated by the Commissioner. They are regularly updated (the latest was issued in November 2023 and previous Public Appointments Orders in Council were made in July 2023 and November 2019). The decision to add a body or office to the Public Appointments Order in Council, to make appointments to it regulated, is a matter for the appointing Secretary of State or Minister. While the Cabinet Office provides general guidance to Departments on the issues to consider when deciding whether a body or office should be added to the Order in Council, it considers ministers are best placed to determine which of the appointments that they are responsible for making should be regulated, along with which should be considered significant appointments, taking account of departmental policies and priorities.

There are usually reasons for roles/bodies not to be regulated, most notably where there are other formal, usually statutory, processes which govern their appointment (which may not allow an appointment to mirror the practices set out in the Governance Code), where the volume and local nature of the roles makes ministerial involvement impractical or where a particular degree of independence from government is required.

Whether Senedd public appointments are dealt with in line with the public appointments code – is there a memorandum of understanding between the two organisations?

The Senedd is responsible for making its own public appointments but none of these are listed in Orders in Council and therefore are not regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments. The Senedd has a responsibility to scrutinise significant appointments made by Welsh Government which they do by holding pre-appointment hearings with successful candidates. There is no Memorandum of Understanding in place.

Dear Chair

GILESTONE FARM

Thank you for your letter of 26 February seeking clarification on two additional points following the Committee's consideration of my letter of 2 February about Gilestone Farm. My responses to the Committee's questions are set out below.

Can you confirm the Welsh Government has sought a new valuation of the land, following the discovery of the ospreys on site? Previously, the Committee has been told the farm had a market value of £4.35m. If a new valuation is available, can this valuation be shared with the Committee? If no updated valuation has been sought, why not?

An external valuation of Gilestone Farm was undertaken in July 2023, prior to our being informed of the arrival of the ospreys. At that time, the property was valued at £4.25m, which is the price Welsh Government paid for the asset. The birds' arrival makes the site a unique proposition, and we have since received and implemented the osprey conservation plan. Looked at typically, a firm revised valuation will be difficult to obtain; the uniqueness of the site and situation means there is a lack of comparable and/or empirical evidence to substantiate a change in value either upwards or downwards. A current, in-principle valuation of the asset will nevertheless be undertaken by Alder King as part of the Annual Valuation of all Welsh Government assets. That valuation should be available by early May, and I will update you and the Committee as to the findings.

Can you confirm the income generated from the Farm Business Tenancy currently in place for the site?

The total income generated from the previous Farm Business Tenancy to November 2023 was £37,753. A new one-year Farm Business Tenancy has been agreed with the existing tenant for a lease term up to November 2024. The first invoice for £16,300 of rent under the new tenancy will be issued in May, and the second tranche of £16,300 will be rendered in October. Any profit rent due will also be rendered in May and October respectively.

With best wishes.

Yours sincerely
