Dear Chair,

I’m aware of the Committee’s ongoing scrutiny of education provision during the pandemic, and in particular the evidence sessions planned from this week onwards in relation to the education offer under the current lockdown arrangements. As ever, I welcome the Committee’s proactive approach in this area.

I thought it would be helpful to update you in respect of the actions my team and I are taking alongside the work of the Committee in holding Government and others to account and to restate what I believe should be the current key current children’s rights priorities. In this letter I update you with a snapshot on my team’s general work in relation to the current crisis, as well as informing you of work we are doing to collate more information on the digital divide, to support national communications with children and our calls on vaccinations for school staff.

As you know my website has an Information Hub which provides dedicated support, advice, information and resources for children and families. We’ve updated this page recently in light of the latest national lockdown, including details of mental health support available across Wales for children and young people, and will continue to keep this content up to date in response to the queries my office is receiving.

As well as continuing to offer my casework service on a daily basis, my team is collating the issues that are arising so that I can raise these further in the following meetings:

- At least weekly engagement with Government officials; more as required and urgent matters sent to officials ahead of any such meetings;
- Monthly engagement with representatives with the regional education consortia.

We’ve also continued attendance at a range of policy and practice working groups in respect of children and young people including vulnerable children working group, Shadow Social Partnership, Government and Qualifications Wales’ stakeholder groups for 2021 assessments, and many more alongside.
My team continue to monitor and intervene where necessary in situations where children are likely to be most at risk from restrictions, this includes those living in residential children’s homes, and those in closed welfare, mental health and youth justice settings. For example, we supported arrangements for looked after children to have some contact with their families over Christmas, despite the restrictions in place.

Scrutiny of issues arising through casework and social media has led me to create a short online survey for school and college leaders to establish the ongoing pressures and issues in relation to digital exclusion. When I was giving evidence to this Committee in November 2020, I noted that I’d asked the Government to undertake an audit of provision across local authority areas. Whilst I was pleased that they took up this suggestion, the Government has yet to collate all results, so there remains a gap in the picture of ongoing need across Wales for children. It is concerning that this remains unresolved so many months on from the original lockdown period and so I’ve decided to collate up to date data on this myself in order to evidence any ongoing need for additional resources of support as well as identify the immediate hurdles for local authorities and others to overcome with urgency.

I will be collating a short report of findings from this work which will be published; I will ensure a copy is shared with the Committee once this is completed. Depending on the response rate, I hope to be able to report on this by the end of January 2021.

I’ve also offered Unions for school and teaching staff to copy my office in to any correspondence with their local authorities on the topic of digital access, in order to keep a close eye on this issue.

I recognise that the public health situation creates enormous pressures and significantly reduces the options available to the Government. I have attempted in all of my public messaging to balance the need to support critical public health messages – in my mind, so vital in a public health crisis – whilst also holding Government to account. All of my public statements are published on my website and social media accounts.

However, I have continued to push for direct communications with and to children and young people. I have been pleased to support Qualifications Wales with a short notice letter to young people regarding the assessment arrangements for 2021 in light of the ongoing school closures. I’ve also arranged another session for the Minister for Education to be able to talk to young people affected by the decisions in relation to assessments this year, before she publishes further information on the arrangements.

I have also reiterated the importance of listening to young people to inform decisions about qualifications, and I will continue to scrutinise Government’s ongoing development of research plans into young people’s experience of assessment over the coming months.
In respect of qualifications for 2021, the aims of my work are to enable young people to have their rights respected, to be listened to, get clear information, to be treated fairly, have their wellbeing supported and to an education that helps them fulfil their potential.

In all of my work I have been keeping the Government’s duties to uphold children’s rights in the forefront of my mind. I have seen the latest published CRIA in respect of the December decisions around school closures and national Alert level 4. I had seen this document in advance of its publication and welcome in particular the key principles that pervade all of the Government’s work, to ensure children are seen and supported and being provided for in a suitable way. Ultimately however the most recent Government decisions have been driven by the overriding public health crisis and unfortunately this meant that decisions in relation to school closures and reducing socialisation between children and young people were made that did not fit with the findings of the CRIA, but could be argued to be understandable in the circumstances.

This was why, in my latest statements, I re-highlighted the need to properly prioritise children’s education at a national level, by urging the Government to look at creative and innovative ways to bring children back in to school in as short a timeframe as possible, within the current circumstances. I believe that this is just as necessary for their mental health and wellbeing as for their education offer, and would like to see plans being drawn up to allow different age groups to engage with education face to face, whether this is on a rota or timetabled basis, or with limited classes or groups at any one time. In order to support this it is vital that our education staff are prioritised in respect of Covid vaccinations; we cannot make education a national priority without taking all actions available to us to do so. To support this, the four Children’s Commissioners for the UK nations are writing jointly to the Joint Committee on Vaccinations and Immunisations (JCVI) and all four Chief Medical Officers and Health Ministers to re-emphasise this point.

To reiterate the calls made in my statement last week, there are four immediate priorities for supporting children and young people:

- Welsh Government must, with urgency, produce minimum expectations of support for home learning, which is age appropriate, for all learners. This need not mean full days at the screen – this is unlikely to be positive for the health of children or teachers – but children and parents should know what to expect from their school. It is clear that very many schools have worked hard to develop their offer over the last few months, and young people have told me that it is much improved, but there cannot be a post-code lottery when it comes to our children’s education.

- Local authorities, with the support of Welsh Government, must ensure access to digital devices for all learners who require them. I am currently seeking information from all head teachers and college principals across Wales to identify the level of need and what the obstacles are, to highlight to local authorities and Welsh Government. We cannot ensure children’s continued access to education without this.

- There is absolutely no doubt that the pandemic has had detrimental impacts on children and young people, and we must all make sure that those who need mental health support can access it without delay. I’ve published information on my website about the superb support that organisations are currently offering.

- We must find a way of re-opening school and college buildings as soon as it’s safe to do so, whether that’s full capacity or even part-time attendance. School and college staff should be prioritised for vaccination to support public and professional confidence.

Should the Committee wish to hear from me in greater detail about my work and the priorities for children’s rights during this period I’d be happy to provide further evidence, either in response to written questions from the Committee or in person should I be invited to give oral evidence.

Yours sincerely,

Sally Holland
