Dear Jenny,

The Youth Justice Blueprint and supporting implementation plan sets out the Welsh Government's approach to the delivery of youth justice services in Wales. The Welsh Government takes a 'child first' approach to youth justice ensuring services are child centred and needs focused.

On 25 May I provided Members with an update on the delivery of the Youth Justice and Women's Justice Blueprint Written Statement. This update coincided with the publication of our latest Implementation Plans. These plans highlight achievements to date and the continued progress we are making with partners against the Blueprint commitments.

Three of our agreed Youth Justice Blueprint priorities have particularly close ties to Speech Language and Communication Needs (SLCN):

- Enhancing prevention activity, particularly in view of the potential impact of the ongoing Covid pandemic on children's health and well-being.
- The development of a trauma-informed approach across youth justice services.
- The development of a vision for the future of the secure youth estate in Wales.

Work on SLCN is embedded across these three workstreams, and progress has been made on a range of issues. For instance, we have commenced referrals to the Forensic Adolescent Consultation Treatment Service for Enhanced Case Management. Enhanced Case Management is available to all Youth Offending Teams (YOT) in Wales for children in voluntary and statutory contact with YOTs.

inform the development of a Youth Justice Prevention Framework for Wales, which will include consideration of SLCN.

A vision for the future of secure youth provision in Wales was agreed by Cabinet in January 2021. The Welsh Government and Ministry of Justice continue to work together to develop a delivery model that best meet the needs of Welsh children requiring secure care within the justice and welfare systems. We want to deliver an integrated trauma-informed service which can respond flexibly to the complex needs of these vulnerable children, including children with SLCN.

We have allocated a further £500,000 to the Blueprint programme which will support projects which strengthen links between women in prison and their children and help progress the delivery of trauma informed practice to Youth Justice Practitioners. This additional investment helps to provide meaningful multi-generational improvements to the lives of some of the most vulnerable people in our society

Last week I announced the location of the Residential Women's Centre in Wales press release. This is a key element within our Women's Justice Blueprint. The Residential Women's Centre will improve the lives of women in Wales, providing a more holistic, trauma informed approach to delivering services for women who may find themselves involved in the criminal justice system in Wales. Once established the Residential Women's Centre will provide a therapeutic and rehabilitative service for vulnerable women in the local area. This will include the provision of SLC.

Since the publication of the Talk With Me: Speech, Language and Communication (SLC) Delivery Plan in November 2020, the Welsh Government has been working at pace to deliver its overarching commitment to improve outcomes for children and young people through a fresh approach to promoting and supporting children and young people's Speech, Language and Communication Needs (SLCN).

The delivery plan has a clear commitment to embed effective SLC support within the Youth Justice Blueprint. The importance of SLC support for young people within the youth justice estate cannot be overstated.

The focus of the Talk With Me Delivery Plan is on early intervention and prevention of SLCN. This will reduce the risk of children and young people presenting with challenging and anti-social behaviour, and therefore their likelihood of entering the youth justice system.

Our national SLC coordinators have facilitated links between The Royal College of Speech and Language Therapists (RCSLT) and colleagues in the Crime and Justice Team in Welsh Government to take this work forward.

We worked closely with ESTYN to develop online training for inspectors who assess the provision of education within the youth justice estate. The training package is live on Estyn's intranet and will ensure that inspectors take account of the provision of SLC support within the context of education provision.

The National SLC Co-ordinators also ran a series of workshops on SLC for Estyn inspectors at their annual training event in 2021. This will form part of an ongoing training and monitoring system with a clear focus on outcomes.
