

P-06-1263 Control pollution from agriculture in the parts of the Wye and Severn River located in Wales – Correspondence from the Petitioner to the Committee, 20 June 2022

I have read the attachments. It appears to go some way to stop the pollution entering the water ways and killing them, but it doesn't address the problem of poultry farming and the high density within Powys and phosphates and ammonia from the waste entering the rivers.

They appears to be detailed and a positive step to cleaning up the rivers from agriculture waste. One factor is missing and that in the dense poultry farming especially here in Powys. It would be good to see a limit to the amount of chickens in a county. The avian flu hotspots are also In the areas of high poultry farming. The waste from poultry has a huge impact on the death of the rivers.

Many Thanks
