Comments

Some of the women we support have been introduced to drugs or alcohol by the abuser as a way of controlling them or keeping them in the relationship.

- o3. Are there certain groups of people who are more likely to be affected by drugs and excessive drinking? If so, which groups might they be?

Those who are more vulnerable for example young people leaving care or those who have been homeless.

- o4. Does a particular stage of your clients' lives influence their likelihood of taking drugs or drinking excessively? If so, what stage might that be? (i.e. age, relationship breakdown, unemployment etc.)

Service users seem to be more at risk of substance abuse when they first engage with us and then again when they move out of accommodation if they don't feel confident to manage in the community.

- o5. What barriers exist for your client(s) when trying to access support and services?

- Confidence;
- Confidential services - would prefer female only services or projects where you don't have to wait in a general room;
- Not thinking that they are the "type" of person that gets a substance abuse issues - highlighting drug and alcohol services as services for "druggies";
- People with alcohol issues do not always want to access services with drug users.

- o6. What barriers exist for services when trying to access support for client(s)?

- Chaotic so don't always attend appointments as agreed;
- Service users not willing to engage;
- Addresses not being given out and lots of accommodation changes so it's hard to keep track;
- At crisis point in DA services there tend to be so many agencies involved that they just don't want to see another person.
