

Cynulliad Cenedlaethol Cymru
 Bil Awtistiaeth (Cymru) drafft
 Arolwg Ar-lein DAB64
 Ymateb gan Cyfrannog ar-lein 64

National Assembly for Wales
 Draft Autism (Wales) Bill
 Online Survey DAB64
 Evidence from Online Participant 64

Please refer to questions in the Online Survey.

Question	Answer
01	No Present scientific understanding of Autism is constantly being improved and updated, the precise definition should therefore be determined and maintained by an appropriate professional body.
02	Not sure
03	Yes
04	Not sure
09	Yes
10	Yes
12	Websites that do not meet current accessibility standards. The requirement to use a specific method of contact (eg phone only, or in person only) Failure to accommodate other conditions, such as anxiety disorders and other mental health issues.
13	Yes
14	age gender the age at point of diagnosis what health board/local authority area they are in diagnosis lead time (currently a major problem) how they were diagnosed the job titles of the people who diagnosed them if other tests were done Any related diagno
15	It should be written in the guidance. It would be easier to update the guidance to reflect current challenges in obtaining a diagnosis.
16	Yes It would be reasonable to ask Autism charities for details of people referred for diagnosis or reassessment of their needs and to match this up with outcomes, particularly diagnosis lead times and if the person was given a formal diagnosis.

17	Not sure
18	Personally it would be of great benefit, although I was diagnosed as a child, a great many of my friends and colleagues were not so lucky and would currently be facing waiting times measured in years to simply get a diagnosis. My half brother only recently obtained a diagnosis (in his late 30s) after a 2 year long wait, with multiple cancelled appointments, when he very clearly presents the expected symptoms. My partner has long suspected she may also be on the spectrum, but I cannot in good conscience recommend she go through the stress of obtaining a diagnosis under the current system, as even the best experiences I've heard of from adult women involved prolonged waiting times, not to mention frequent misdiagnosis, and subsequent overmedication.